Christmas takes over front yard in Campbell

Santa's Workshop and North Pole at 481 N. Carlyn is attracting crowds for the third year.

Constructed by model railroad buff Anthony G. Brunetti and his wife, the entire corner boasts elves at work, a manger scene, and a fat jolly Santa looking out of the living room window.

The Brunetti's started gathering material for their display following the Christmas season four years ago, by purchasing some "worn out" elves. They repaired and repainted Santa's helpers and planned how they could show them off.

The following Christmas they covered their lawn with fiberglass covered with clear plastic, simulating snow and set up their scene.

Brunetti built two small wooden trains and lighted the scene. It was an instant success!

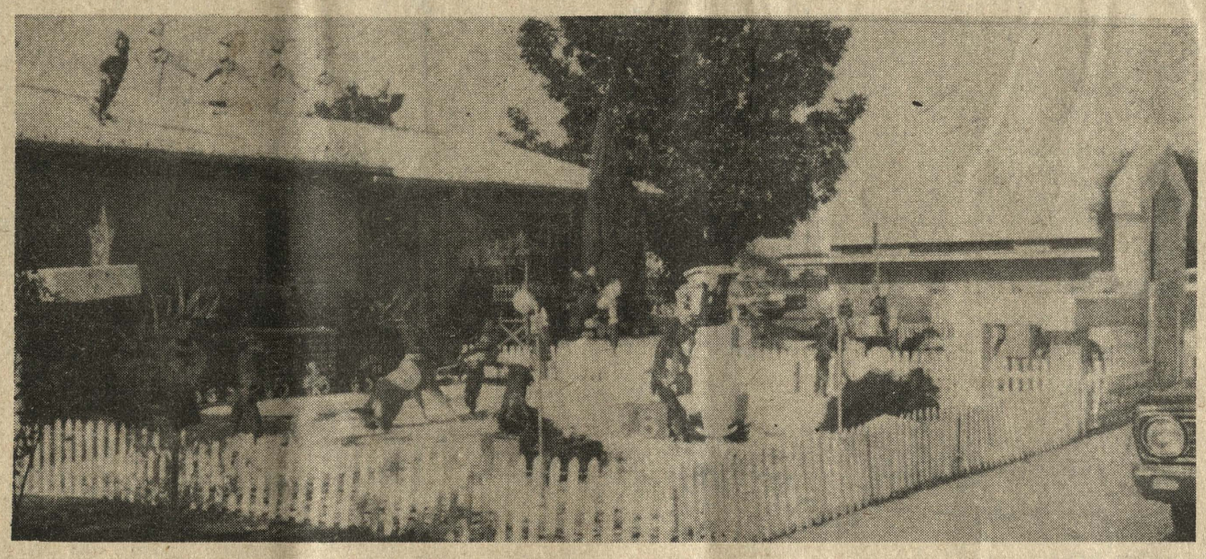
This year an archway and fence have been added so small fry may get close without crossing the "snow."

"What happens to your lawn when the holiday is over," we asked, thinking that not only were they sacrificing their time and privacy, but were ruining their yard.

"Oh, it's just terrible," says Mrs. Brunetti "When we uncover it it's had a nice rest, and missed the frost and for the first two weeks all it does is grow and grow and grow".

We don't really think it made her unhappy.

And it's no secret that the Brunetti's bring a lot of joy to the wide-eyed youngsters who come flocking to see "Christmas in Campbell."



OUT ON THE LIMB with George Vierhus

CAMPBELL -LOS GATOS rivalry on the gridiron dates back only to 1934, as you may recall from the big play that is always given the "big game" at Thanksgiving.

According to records at The Press, Los Gatos holds the edge in victories for the series (18-15).

We note that there seems to be a discrepancy in the number of wins and losses as reported by other mediums. Some day when we have the time we will attempt to straighten it out.

However, that is not the reason we brought up the matter today.

The point is that while, as far as the other teams in the league are concerned, this 34-year rivalry is ancient, it only dates back to 1934.

AND MANY OF US old fogies around were cavorting on gridirons before that time...So, the perennial question comes up of why weren't the two schools playing football before 1934, as both were in existence many years before then.

Naturally, after the passage of years, the original reasons become a little vague and dim.

But, as the way we understand it, football had been prohibited at Campbell High for the years preceding 1934, although Los Gatos was fielding teams.

The story, as we get it, is that someone close to Campbell school administrator's family had lost his life or had been injured on the football field, so football had been banned at Campbell High.

There are probably a number of readers of this column who may be able to expand on this interesting bit of Campbell lore, based on intimate knowledge of the situation.

Take, for instance, a guy like Cy Penhall, the barber, who has lived in Campbell since 1923.

IN THE 44 YEARS that Cy has been around these parts, there have been many changes. We recognize that is not a profound statement, for there have been many changes in all communities in 44 years.

But there is a difference in Campbell in the "changes" that have taken place opposed to those in other localities.

In most other communities as old as Campbell is, many of the current active businesses can proudly trace their "ancestry" back far more than a mere 25-years.

But out of the hundreds of businesses operating in Campbell today, it takes less than one hand to count those that have been operating in town for more than 15 years.

WE ARE NOT going to try to name 'em. Every time we have touched on this subject, we invariably leave out someone.

We just will refer you to Cy.

This reminds us that recently in reminscing with him as to the

Not retroactive

City regulates future "topless"

"Topless" entertainment in Campbell can be prohibited in the future under the emergency ordinance that was adopted by the City Council on Monday night.

But the two establishments in town, the "Sand Box" on Railway Ave., and the "Classy Chassey" on Bascom, that now offer such enticements in the entertainment line will not be affected by the regulatory measure as it is not retroactive in scope.

The ordinance that was adopted specifies that an application for a license must be filed by any establishment that plans to offer nude or semi-nude entertainment at a fee of $200 per year.

But it prohibits the issuance of a permit for nude or semi-nude entertainment and spells out in anatomical detail the definition of "nude" and "semi-nude" for the purpose of the ordinance.

And "topless" is out.

The ordinance that the City Council adopted was drafted by City Attorney Joe Bonacina on the recommendation of Police Chief John Morgan. It was patterned after similar ordinances in other cities.

Bonacina explained that because the state had preempted many of the areas of city control, the ordinance did not "outlaw" specific types of entertainment as in the case in some cities. It merely was to "assist" the Council in determining whether an application should be granted or not.

He also specified that it was not possible to pass retroactive legislation. Thus the two businesses in town that now advertise "topless" acts, would not be affected.

Chief Morgan clearly showed his disappointment in this ruling of the city attorney.

In his presentation the chief had emphasized the need for urgency. He indicated that he felt it was possible to regulate the present establishments under the new ordinance because they would have to apply for business license renewal by the first of the year.

Morgan also was ired by a remark made by Jack Dawson, local attorney, representing Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lamb of "The Sand Box" and Terry Coleman of "Classy Chassey".

Dawson claimed that the state had preempted the field and that the 'Town house' issue again comes before planners

For the second time this year the Planning Commission next Monday night, Dec. 18, is scheduled to take action on controversial zoning question involving property on Virginia Ave. north of Hacienda on which a 32-unit "town house" complex is planned.

In August of this year, after hearing protests from residents in the area who desired to keep the area zoned for single-family residences, the commission approved the application by a 3-2 vote and sent it on to the City Council.

But it didn't get there.

Before the Council could act on the matter, the applicant, Robert Meyer and associates, withdrew the application.

The property in question is located on the west side of Virginia and is between the proposed extension of Bucknam and Hacienda.

In the August meeting, two commissioners, Ed Pack and Thayer Lyons, were absent. Chairman Jack Healey and Commissioners Dean Chamberlin and Kel Young favored the change of zone permitting the town house complex with Commissioners Merrill Grim and Frank Klein opposing the change.

On February 22

Eight panels to feature second community congress

Eight workshop panels each covering a separate phase of community life in Campbell, will feature the second annual Congress for Community Progress scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 22, at West Valley College.

The Congress, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will have as its theme, "Our Community--The people in action" the overall goal will be to attempt to answer the question of "What kind of city do we want?"

The steering committee for the congress, under the chairmanship of the Rev. Ben Gould, in a series of well-attended meetings over the past two months, have specified the panel subjects and have almost completed the selection of moderators and panel members.

The first Congress for Community Progress in Campbell was held last February. Civic leaders immediately recognized its value to the community but were somewhat disappointed with the attendance by citizens.

The second congress which, will also be held in February, is emphasizing citizen participation. More than 200 letters have been sent to various clubs in the area requesting that each organization name at least five "delegates" to attend and represent the groups.

An overall registration fee of $4.50 has been set for the congress sessions which will include lunch that will be served at 12:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. All attending the congress, including the moderators and panel members, will be charged the same fee.

Registration will be from 8:30 to 9 a.m. and panel sessions will begin at 10:05 p.m.

Representatives from PG&E assisted last year in presenting the first congress and one of the highlights of the sessions last year was the slide presentation of "A Stranger Looks at Campbell" by PG&E. Both attractive and unattractive scenes of the community were shown.

The firm is also cooperating this year and will again present slides under the title of "A Stranger Returns to Campbell".

The eight panel workshops that have been selected by the steering committee are:

1. Streets, Traffic Safety and Transportation.
2. Youth Direction
3. Development--Industrial and Commercial
4. Social Development and Opportunities
5. Campbell's Image
6. Progress and Trends in Community Education
7. Local Governmental Services
8. Parks and Recreation

Efforts have been made to select moderators who are well-versed in their particular areas. Panel members will also be specialists, both amateur and professional, in their fields.

Before the panel sessions begin, a brief review of the recommendations made at last year's congress will be presented as well as the accomplishments made during the year.

Community leaders feel that the first congress was helpful in stimulating citizen interest in the city's capital improvement bond issue that was passed in October.

Many of the panel discussions will be geared to what effect the bond issue will have on the city's future. This will be especially true in the panels dealing with streets, "image", governmental services, parks and recreation and "development".

Editorial

Interpretation

There is no question that the passage of the street improvement bond issue of $1,025,000 on Oct. 24, was one of the greatest forward steps ever taken by this city.

But the bond money cannot adequately cover all the needs of the city.

It must be spread and spent wisely. Naturally there will be problems arise over priorities.

The City Council and the citizens committee recognized this and seven major points were established as a guide-line in use of the street bond monies long before the bonds were passed.

The seven points are:

1. Improvement will be on a first-come, first serve basis.
2. Property owners will participate to the extent of one-third of the costs.
3. The owners' share will be offset by the value of dedicated land.
4. Residential streets shall have preference.
5. Property owners and City will share sanitary trunk line installation costs.
6. These arrangements will be offered to County residents, if they annex.
7. All previous agreements and contracts with owners will remain in effect.

The seven points are guidelines mainly because the citizens committee recognized that it would be impractical to "tie the hands" of the City Council so that the street improvement program would become impractical.

The bond measure that was passed specified that both minor and major streets would be improved. It was necessary to combine the two in order to keep the entire bond package within the specified limits.

But, despite the fact that the seven major policy statements spelled out in general how the bond monies should be used, they are still subject to different interpretations.

The "1/3-2/3" formula, for example, was developed primarily for the total reconstruction of a given street. In these cases, the cost of curbs and sidewalks generally amount to one-third of the whole street section.

But there is no retroactive consideration in cases where curbs can be retained and none was intended by the committee.

Then there is the problem when curbs exist along the frontage of some properties but not on others on a street to be improved.

During the committee's discussion, it was emphasized that it was not the committee's recommendation to give any such "credits" But this point is still bound to raise a fuss.

Similarly it was not the intention of the hard-working citizens group that presented the street improvement bond program to give credit for portions of sanitary sewer lines that are already in or for rights-of-way already dedicated.

Another point that is subject to interpretation involves certain streets that are eligible for the program but which do not require too much costly work.

But how far should the City go in such cases?

It has been recommended that no improvement district should be formed, if the property owner's cost is less than 20% of the total cost. This sounds fair because of the many incidental costs that are involved in the formation of such districts.

Then there is the question of whether the total cost of improving a street should include such items: street lights, trees, signs etc.

It was felt by most of the citizens committee that these costs should be included because a determined effort should be made to achieve the ultimate in the improvements.

In addition, the committee realized that such bothersome points are bound to crop up in the carrying out of the program involving whether sidewalks would be needed; whether utilities should be undergrounded; or whether the standard street width should always be carried out.

Committee members felt that sidewalks should be optional but that undergrounding of utilities should be included wherever possible and the standard widths of the streets should be adhered to.

Although the citizens street committee spent many hours in research in developing the recommendations that were ultimately adopted by the City Council, all the members were aware that they could not cover all the bases.

Basically, however, they wanted the bond street improvement program to be consistent and fair as far as the minor street projects were concerned.

Obviously it follows that what may be considered "consistent and fair" to one group may not be considered so by another.

A question, for example, that has cropped up recently affects streets in industrial areas.

If it is granted that, as the policy statement reads, "residential streets shall have preference", does this mean that bond money is prohibited from being used on an industrial street?

Naturally it is impossible to go to the electorate or even to the now-disbanded citizens committee to get the answer for many of the questions that have arisen and will continue to arise over the "hows" and "whys" in the spending of the bond money for street improvement projects.

The responsibility for carrying out the program rests solely with the City Council and no other body.

We believe that the policy statements developed long before the voters approved the bond measures provide an adequate guide-line for the council's action.

We also concede that "interpretation" will play a large role.

But is that really new?

The U.S. Supreme Court has been doing it for 170 years as far as the constitution is concerned.

changes that have taken place in this town, Cy recalled that in the early years in the space of three blocks on Campbell Ave. (which was the only business district of the community then) there were eight stores that sold groceries!

Today there isn't a single one in the same area.

That brings to mind the point that was raised recently during one of the more or less discussions of "what to do about Campbell Ave."

One guy wondered whether anything should be done now to the street at all.

He maintained it will change on its own accord as to what is desired.

And he cited the history of the street to "prove" his point.

No comment.

ANOTHER ONE who can recall some of the highlights of the Campbell of the past and who has been actively involved in directing his native city's future, is Councilman Homer Hyde, whose family has been around Campbell quite a spell.

Incidentally, at a recent council meeting, Homer was the object of some good-natured kidding about his age.

In a discussion of the need for repairing some of the curbs, conducted by Bill Wren, public works director, Homer mentioned that some of the curbs had not been touched in some areas of the town since he was a kid.

Bill sagely nodded his head in agreement and unthinkingly brought down the house on Homer with his next remark.

"Yes," he admitted, "Some of them are pretty old."

WINNING TEAM MEMBERS in the recent Chamber of Commerce successful membership drive were to be awarded an expense-paid plane trip to Reno.

But so few took advantage of the prize, that instead of a 71-passenger job, a 28-seater was booked and even then many of the seats were made available for employees of a San Jose firm.

And the plane went to Fallon, Nevada, instead of Reno.

Although Fallon was hospitable enough, activity was somewhat limited, as compared to Reno.

But the passengers actually did get to Reno after all. But not on their own choosing.

On the flight back, the plane developed engine trouble and an emergency landing was necessary at Reno.

From there the passengers were transferred to a United flight to Oakland and they were taken by bus to San Jose.

That is, most of the passengers.

A couple decided after their experience to use bus transportation all the way from Reno.

Anyway it WAS quite an experience for all concerned.

But Bob Blonder, of the First Valley Bank, and Arland Hatfield, of the First National, are credited with the most cryptic description of the entire foray into the wilds of Nevada.

They have suggested that next year the LOSING team be awarded the free flight.

SPEAKING of flights, we had occasion last week to learn first hand that "commuting" to the L.A. area is possible.

Through the good services of the Campbell Travel Agency and convenient flights of Air California from and to San Jose, we were able to attend the funeral services of a very dear friend of ours in Newport Beach on Monday at 10 a.m.

We left the San Jose airport at 8 a.m., attended the service and were back in our office in Campbell at 2 p.m.

Conveniently Air California lands at the Orange County Airport, which is only a few miles from the funeral chapel which, of course, made our schedule possible.

It takes an experience like that to make one realize the world has shrunk.

Or had you noticed?

police department only could enforce the laws. He claimed that both establishments were willing to cooperate with the police and were not creating any disturbances.

Chief Morgan took particular exception when Dawson added that one time it had been noted that police officers, apparently off-duty, had made up half the audience in one of the places.

The City Council unanimously approved the ordinance as presented on the motion of Councilman Charlie Rose, seconded by Councilman Homer Hyde.

However, prior to the vote, Councilman Bill Smeed questioned whether the urgency of measure was necessary. By specifying "urgency", the ordinance went into effect immediately.

The basis for "urgency", as defined in the ordinance, cited that at present there are no provisions in the present city ordinances regulating such type of entertainment; that regulatory provisions are needed for the general welfare of the citizens; that there is a "threatened establishment of places of amusement employing nude and semi-nude persons"; and that the establishment of such businesses without regulatory provisions would result in police enforcement problems.

The ordinance, as originally drawn, would have included all establishments that offered "live entertainment" but it had been modified. It specified only "nude" or "semi-nude" in the final draft which apparently satisfied those in the audience who represented restaurants and other places that offer "live entertainment" of the less sensational variety from time to time.

Industrial firm protests trash service charges

Whether the Green Valley Disposal Co., which has the sole franchise for trash and garbage pickup within the city limits, is offering adequate service and competitive rates especially in the industrial area is to be researched by the city staff.

This was detemined Monday night at the City Council meeting when City Manager Bob Stephens was directed by the council to explore the situation.

The action followed the written and oral complaint of R. Buckley, president of Contract Design & Engineering Co., 1092 Florence Way, in the industrial park.

Buckley said that a firm known as "Dependable Disposal" has been servicing his firm because the franchise-holder, Green Valley Disposal, could not offer the same type of service at the rate charged by the other firm.

Under the franchise agreement, no other disposal firm but Green Valley can operate within the city limits.

Mario Toso, a partner in Green Valley, claimed that his company could give any type of service desired and said that the rates were competitive for the service offered.

It was emphasized by Council members and City Attorney Joe Bonacina that Green Valley Disposal had the sole authority to pick up trash but that the rates and service were subject to review.

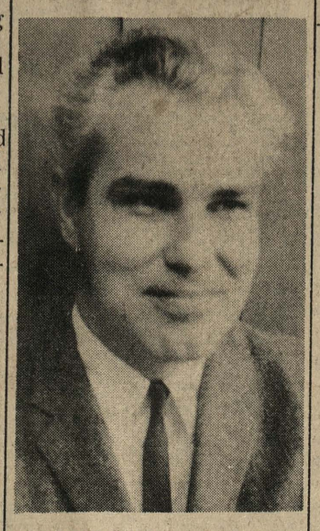
The Council then on Councilman Homer Hyde's motion, directed the city manager to investigate and report.

In other actions at the council meeting, it was decided to have a study session after the first of the year on the sticky question of priorities in the spending of bond money for street improvements.

Bill Wren, public works director, indicated in his report some of the questions of interpretation of policy that would arise.

The Council referred to the city attorney the claim presented to the city for $25,000 by Herman F. Friestedt for property allegedly damaged at 10 E. Alice Ave. by the widening of Winchester Blvd.

A resolution was adopted by the City Council also expressing appreciation to the West Valley College students who conducted a citywide citizens poll prior to the successful bond election. The students were members of the class of Dr. Richard Hayden.



COMMENDATION--Bill Hedley, Campbell architect, received a commendation award for designing the Sunnyvale municipal court building from the Coast Valleys Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The award was made as part of the first community design awards program and honors went to more than 20 projects in three counties, Santa Clara, San Mateo and Santa Cruz.

Top designs chosen by the judges were the Palo Alto municipal service center and San Jose's west valley branch library.

New method to help brain injured boy

by Grace Hebard

Can you spare six minutes a week to give a ten year old boy a new lease on life? Kevin Klein is a loveable boy, full of good spirits, curiosity and a love of life. Unfortunately he has not been able to realize his full potential because of brain damage. He is a student in the educationally handicapped class at Amber Drive School.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Klein, 172 Branbury Drive, want to begin a program of exercises for him called "patterning" and in order to go ahead with the plan, they need 70 volunteers. The exercises require a five man team for six minutes, twice a day, seven days a week.

The Kleins first realized Kevin was not progressing normally at three years when his speech was slow and incoherent. They also discovered he was exceptionally awkward... he fell down too much and bumped into objects. He couldn't catch a ball or play other games with the children in the neighborhood without getting confused.

DIAGNOSED

There was other signs of muscular incoordination so they took Kevin to the Stanford Clinic for a thorough evaluation. The doctors diagnosed him as "neurologically handicapped". He was treated with tranquilizers and other medicines, but no great improvement was shown. His writing is poor and he is at the second grade level in reading. He is regarded as a slow learner.

Not too long ago the Kleins heard about a new approach to Kevin's problems developed by a team of doctors in Philadelphia, Pa. Since the theory was expounded principally by two brothers, Glen and Robert Doman, M.D., and Carl H. Delacado, a psychologist, it is termed now the "Doman-Delacado" theory, or "Theory of Neurological Organization."

These physicians observed a large group of brain damaged children and came to the conclusion that one of the reasons for their physical incoordination was due to the fact that many of them never went through the creeping, crawling stage of development.

The doctors reported that the opportunities to crawl and creep are rarely accorded to the brain injured child. He is so often confined to a playpen or a high chair. They believe the child should spend prolonged periods on the floor in a prone or quadruped position, so that he may crawl or creep in order to utilize uninjured brain areas in physiological development.

STAGES

The nervous system of each new human being must go through a series of developmental stages before his brain can operate at its full potential. In effect, the doctors say, these repeat in telescoped time man's evolution from lower forms to the unique human achievement of speech, reading and writing. He learns by stages, trying motions, feeling things, tasting them, hearing them, looking at them.

MORE

They point out that if a child skips any phase of this development there is likely to be inadequate development at higher levels. The last step in a child's programming, according to the doctor's theory is the development of "one sidedness"--when a child shows a preference for one hand for finely controlled movements.

PATTERNING

These stages can be developed by special exercises called "patterning". This is where volunteer help is needed to assist the child in the exercises.

This series of exercises must be of six months duration to have any noticeable effect, the doctors indicated. The Kleins wish to start the program immediately. They already have a number of friends and neighbors who have shown willingness to help. Anyone else who can spare the time is asked to call MRS. LORRAINE RUSSELL, 378-1436, who is coordinating the schedule.

Campbell exceeds United Fund goal of $45,797 in 1967 drive

Richard A. Hardy, vice president of Ainsley Corp., and Campbell United Fund campaign chairman, has announced that the local UF campaign for 1967 has exceeded its goal of $45,797.

Hardy reported that a total of $45,877 was raised by Campbell residents to help people in need in United Fund's 77 health, research and welfare agencies throughout Santa Clara County.

Funds collected by Hardy and his team of volunteers will be added to monies raised in other cities throughout the county for distribution to UF agencies after the first of the year.

Several local UF agencies which will share in the campaign proceeds are Eastfield, home for emotionally disturbed children; Campbell Area Student Aid Fund; Campbell Emergency Welfare Fund and the Campbell Union High School District Student Emergency Welfare Fund.

The high school district student emergency welfare fund will receive UF support for the first time in 1968. Seven other new agencies joining UF for first-time support include Miramonte Mental Health Services, Santa Clara County Mental Health Association, Seventh Step Foundation, Palo Alto Medical Research Foundation, Friends Outside, National Travelers Aid and the Santa Clara County Council of Churches--Friendly Visitor Program.

Campbell, according to Hardy, helped boost the county-wide United Fund effort to 106 per cent of goal, with total collections amounting to $2,891,132.

If any Campbell resident has not been contacted and wishes to make a contribution, he may still do so by mailing his donation to United Fund, P.O. Box 2, Santa Clara 95052.

News of medical research doesn't always make the front page. Nevertheless, the contributions of unselfish scientists toward a better and more peaceful world should be publicized. Some good illustrations can be drawn from activities of people connected with the Stanford University School of Medicine.

Dr. Frank Winter has made repeated trips to an isolated village at the tip of Baja California to treat eye disorders of the villagers and prescribe glasses donated by Parson's Optical Laboratories of Palo Alto. To express their appreciation for Dr. Winter's work in restoring sight to over 100 of their people, the villagers of San Jose del Cabo presented him with a gold medal inscribed in Spanish: "Con Gratitude Dr. Winter."

A Belgian infant, Pascale Neuville, can now expect to grow and live a normal life as a result of delicate open heart surgery successfully performed at the Stanford Clinic by Dr. Norman Shumway and Dr. Norman Sissman. Residents of the child's town and a Belgian industrialist helped the family send Pascale to Stanford for treatment. Furthermore, the clinic cancelled all professional fees.

Dr. Radha Pant recently returned to her native India. There she will utilize training received while serving as a Research Associate in Biochemistry at Stanford, to tackle two of her country's biggest problems--malnutrition and economic depression. The South Palo Alto Lions Club, the Stanford University School of Medicine, and and Palo Alto Medical Research Foundation assisted Dr. Pant in obtaining $15,000 worth of surplus equipment to take home with her.

To learn more about special aspects of medicine, a Stanford medical student traveled to Ethiopia, where he worked on the problem of rickets. His duties included directing a Rickets Specialty Clinic, doing research, and traveling some 10,000 miles with a mobile child health unit to set up clinics and educate people in outlying villages.

As a final illustration, a team of American and Malaysian physicians in Singapore worked together in an effort to understand a mysterious condition called hyaline membrane disease, which proved fatal to the late President Kennedy's newborn son, and kills 50,000 infants each year in the U.S. alone. Theorizing that improper timing of a nerve reflex which causes constriction of arteries carrying blood to the lungs was the major underlying cause of the disease, the physicians devised a technique to counteract the harmful effects. Since returning from Singapore, the American physicians have successfully treated several infants suffering from this type of respiratory distress.

The examples set by these people are heartening because they are being repeated all over the globe. I know that peace will be brought closer to reality through such strong ties among citizens of widely separated countries.

The medical men and women of the Stanford University School of Medicine, and their counterparts around the world, are truly ambassadors in the cause of peace.

BUCKNALL

The sweet, melodic voices of children singing and reciting will fill the air at Bucknall Elementary School's Christmas Program.

In order to accomodate the relatives and friends of the students, the Christmas Program has been divided into two consecutive nights. Last night in the school's multipurpose room there were presentations by the Kindergarten, 1st, 2nd, and 3rd grade students and the school choir led by 5th grade teacher, Polly Danielson.

On Wednesday, Dec. 13, at 7:30 p.m., same place, will feature the students of the 4th, 5th, and 6th grades, the choir and the school band led by Roger Merrill, music instructor.

The parents are urged to see the Program from beginning to end on the night of their child's performance as the audience grows rather thin towards the later part of the program if parents leave after their children's class is finished. The students will be served refreshments in their home rooms during the program.

BOHNETT

The Home and School Club of J. Bohnett School are holding their first annual Holiday Food Sale today from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. This will be followed in the evening with their gala Christmas tree raffle, children's program, and refreshment time.

The Bohnett orchestra, under the direction of Robert Culver, opens the program at 7:30 p.m. with a variety of spirited selections. The Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. Margery Jeaul, follows with music depicting holiday music from around the world. The program closes traditionally with the Fourth Grade classes giving their delightful Christmas choral reading.

Again this year the Christmas tree, complete with decorations, will be raffled off, followed by refreshments. Child care will be provided this evening.

Frank Triena, music instructor, will direct Del Mar's Glee Club and A Capella Choir.

A dramatic panorama, "A Visit from Saint Nicholas," by Clement C. Moore, will be presented by Del Mar High's drama classes, under the direction of William Fisher. The public is invited.

Hospital honors ten from Campbell with service pins

Forty-three initial employees of Community Hospital of Los Gatos-Saratoga, including 10 from Campbell, received the hospital's first five-year service pins at a special fifth anniversary awards dinner Sunday, Dec. 10, at the Los Gatos Elks Club.

Making the presentations was Ralph Ross executive director, and Frederic LeRocker, administrator.

The event, hosted by the hospital's board of directors to honor employees who have served the hospital since its opening in December, 1962, was also attended by city officials of Campbell and other cities within its service area and administrators of other Valley hospitals. Special guests were charter members of the Community Hospital Women's Auxiliary.

Among those receiving gold pins is Mrs. Ralph Gentile, superintendent of nurses, who was the first employee at the hospital.

Campbell woman hurt in two car head-on crash

A Campbell woman, Mrs. Gullarmo Barbano, 75, of 951 Micheal Dr., is in poor condition at Valley Medical Center as the result of a head-on crash on Union Ave. and McGlincey Lane Sunday evening. She was a passenger in a car driven by her brother-in-law, John Lazzarini. Lazzarini's wife, Mrs. Anna Mary Lazzarini, 1395 Sierra Ave., San Jose and the driver of the other car, Daniel Hinchey, 20, of 1405 Eden Ave., a sailor stationed at Moffett Field, were killed outright.

California Highway Patrol officers indicated it appeared the sailor's compact car was traveling at high speed southbound in the wrong lane. Impact of the crash smashed the fronts of both vehicles into the drivers' compartments. The small car had to be pried apart with two tow trucks to extricate the driver.

PROMOTED

Marine Lance Corporal Peter R. Schutz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manfred G. Schutz of 2081 Orestes Way, Campbell, was promoted to his present rank while serving with the Seventh Communications Battalion, First Marine Division in the Republic of Vietnam.

Christmas programs , dances, fill high school calendars

Camden Capers

By Gayle Piech

There's no doubt it, that the following 27 Camdenites, who received straight A's during the first quarter are "brains".

Joel Ake, Cheryl Bohn, Michele Frazier, Sandra Inman, Dave May, Donna Meiss, Pam Picone and Ann Snyder are the Freshmen who received superior grades.

Leading the sophomores are Lorraine Bender, Roberta Gray, Debbie Haack and Jennifer Preston with straight A's.

Junior "brains" are Daryl Fazekas, Brad Reid-Selth and Janet Wong.

The senior class has by far the most "brains". Steve Bignell, Mary Brozozowski, Kirk Cunningham, Bob Dutton, Jim Huett and James Larson are a portion of the "brains". Joachim Mugden, Lois Nakamura, Judy Sperling, Gayle Towner, Paul Willis and Don Witek also received straight A's.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

Camden High's music department will present an all-musical program at the Parent Teacher Association Christmas session tonight (Dec. 13) at 8 p. m. in the cafetorium.

Traditional Christmas selections will be presented by the a capella choir, the brass choir, and the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Glen Benner.

SPORTS SCOOP

Height is often considered superior in basketball, but the Camden Cougar varsity team proved that it takes more than just long legs to win a game, as they defeated Fremont High 62-57 in their season opener.

Balanced scoring and overall hustle seemed to make the difference in the game, as the Cougars overcame a big team that averaged six foot three inches per man in their starting lineup.

Campbell was assured the victory.

Del Mar Dateline

by Glenda Vitale

"Starlit Reflection" has been chosen as the theme of this year's annual Christmas Ball, to be held Friday night, Dec. 15, from 8 to 11 p.m. Music will be provided by the popular "Stained Glass". Dress will be semi-formal, although girls are allowed to wear long formals, also.

Jeanne Rose, Angel Lombardo, Lori Burtis, and Ann Walter have been nominated for Christmas Queen. The Princesses and the Queen to rule over this Christmas season will be announced at the Ball.

Friday night Del Mar lost it's first basketball game of the season to Fremont high school.

This Friday, Dec. 15, the Home Economics Department of Del Mar will conduct an "Open House", which will be the result of much preparation by the Home Ec classes. The cooking classes have worked hard making all kinds of Christmas goodies, and the sewing classes have made many different kinds of Christmas decorations, presents, etc...There should be some very interesting displays.

Fire Chief George Maxwell urges "caution" during holidays

Fire Chief Maxwell emphasized caution in his annual fire safety warning for the holiday season.

"Our beautifully decorated homes can turn into a pile of smoking debris, if improper wiring and overloading of circuits are permitted," Chief Maxwell points out.

Here are some other points emphasized by Campbell's fire chief:

The increasing number of electrical fires indicate the overloading in the homes. Carelessly installed electric decorations, will mean more fire calls. The possibility of rain can also play havoc with improper wiring.

Even the lawn decorations can electrocute an unsuspecting child if proper steps are not taken to ground appliances and observe other proper electric procedures. Caution with electricity is the best way to enjoy the holiday beauty.

Maxwell adds that caution with Christmas decorations is also a must for holiday safety.

Even in this modern day and age there are still candle fires Their beauty, romantic or nostalgic appeal can be shattered in a matter of moments, if they are forgotten or not placed with proper concern for the extension of fire from a spill or tip over.

The chief notes that there have been as many as six candle fires over Christmas holidays. Young people and adults have been involved in making the decorations with paraffin, which is a hydrocarbon byproduct. Its vapors have flashed into fires while the unsuspecting victim stood by helplessly unprepared for the accident.

Chief Maxwell also adds that holiday decorations, near heat of any kind, can contribute to an unsafe condition. USE CAUTION. We all know about Christmas tree safety but we feel that it will be the other person, not us, he notes.

"Each year," the chief continues, "we stress CAUTION in burning wrapping papers in the fireplace and the need for screens in all fireplaces.

Little League sells trees

If you haven't bought your Christmas tree yet, Moreland Little League parents have some beautiful trees at Hamilton Ave. and Darryl Drive. Sale hours are from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Proceeds from the sale will benefit Moreland Little League for the 1968 season.

Del Mar Sports

By Ed Gibson

Although Del Mar's varsity wrestling and varsity basketball teams won several battles last week, they did not win their wars.

Hugh McCain, after being the game high scorer in the Don's basketball triumph over Kennedy Dec. 5, led Del Mar's attack against Fremont last Friday, again the high scorer of the game with 29 points. But McCain's leadership wasn't enough since Fremont won 73-63.

Bob Lee with nine points; Loren Toews, eight; Bruce Posey, seven; Todd Martin, four; Steve Weins, four; and Don Transeth, two points, also scored for the Dons.

The Don's varsity wrestling team suffered their first defeat of the season at the hands of Cupertino, 28-21, on Dec. 7. Werner Haase, Ray Weber, Milt Landers, Terry Kerr, Ron Ardiozone, and John Aiello won their matches for Del Mar.

No varsity wrestling or basketball is scheduled for this week, or next week.

Questions and Answers

Q. - I have medical insurance. While on vacation, I had the misfortune to fall off a steepe embankment while walking along a mountain trail in the Santa Cruz Mountains. I could not be moved until I had been examined and put in splints by a doctor. Are these doctor services covered by the medical insurance?

A. - Yes, they are. Doctor services, whether you receive them as emergency treatment at the scene of an accident, at your home, at the doctor's office, or in a hospital, are covered by Medicare. Doctor's services rendered for an illness or injury are covered by Medicare. If doctor's services are rendered during the course of a routine physical examination, they are excluded from medical insurance coverage.

Q. - I was taken to the hospital for emergency treatment by ambulance. Can I claim reimbursement under medical insurance for the cost involved?

A. - Yes. Ambulance service which is medically necessary is a covered service. Thus, ambulance service to and from a hospital is normally a covered service under medical insurance. However, if the doctor stated it was not medically necessary for you to be transported home from the hospital by ambulance and you decided to use the ambulance anyway, it would be at your own expense. Remember that medical insurance pays 80 percent of the reasonable charges for all covered services in the year, except the first $50. Your reimbursement would be computed accordingly.

Q. - If I should have to go to a hospital, how do they know I am signed up for Medicare?

A. - Your health insurance (Medicare) identification card will show the hospital that you are entitled to Medicare benefits. Be sure to take it with you if you should have to go to the hospital.

OVER THE TOP--Connie Brewer, 4, of Campbell can barely see over the top of the package she has just received from Santa Claus, as her sister, Carol, 6, and Marko the Clown look on. All of this happened at the fourth annual Christmas Party for children of staff members of Campbell Community Hospital, held at the Campbell Country Women's Club.

Hospital staff families enjoy holiday party

Santa Claus was on hand at the Campbell Country Women's Club recently for the fourth annual Christmas Party for staff members of Campbell Community Hospital.

Over 100 children were guests of the hospital's board of directors, and each received a gift from Santa and words of cheer from Marko the Clown, who checked their names off in his "Good Book."

E. E. Admire, hospital administrator, said that the night staff at the hospital is scheduling its Christmas Party on Dec. 12 at Old Town, Los Gatos, and other employees are planning a party for Saturday, Dec. 16 at the Red Fox Den, San Jose.

Members of the hospital auxiliary served as hostesses for the children's party.

Campbell elementary presents Yule songs

Choristers of Campbell Elementary School will re-tell the story of Christmas in songs old and new when they present the annual Yuletide program Thursday evening, December 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the school multi-use room.

Sixth grade chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Eleanore Scherer, will offer selections from the television spectacular, "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer," with music and lyrics by Johnny Marks.

Accompanist for the musical fantasy is Nevelle Kuckuck.

The "Rudolph" score features the antics of eleves, whose membership includes Kim Olsen, Beth Ann Killmeyer, Dee Ann Cleveland, Vanessa Torre, Janice Duncan, Colleen O'Brien, Sally Leitz.

Donna Dignon, Tim English, Roxanne Smith, Pam Murphy, Rozann Lazzarino, Janette Johnsen, Richard Carvalho, Ricki White, and Doyal Allen.

Girls Glee Club, seventh-eighth grades under the direction of Miss Carol Eason, will offer several standard carols and one modern composition during their part of the program.

The carolers will sing "Angels, We Have Heard On High," "What Child Is This?," "Silent Night," "O Come, O Come Immanuel," and "O Holy Night," in addition to the relatively modern "Winter Wonderland."

Soloist for the "Silent Night" Night" number is Carolyn Mashos, and piano accompanist, Cherly Payne. Regular accompanist is Lorrie Bryant.

Highlights of the intermediate chorus presentation are "We're a Couple of Misfits," featuring Dale Bohna as Rudolph and Lynn Hermle as Hermie the Misfit Elf, and "The Most Wonderful Day of the Year," with solo by Sandy Mann.

Other numbers by the chorus include "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," "Jingle Jingle Jingle," "There's Always Tomorrow," "A Holly Jolly Christmas," and "A Merry Merry Christmas."

Preceding the annual Christmas program will be a brief meeting of the Campbell Elementary Home and School Club.

Steve Stephens, a teacher of music and Spanish at Campbell, will lead the audience in community sing caroling at the close of the evening.

For the first time in many years the Christmas music concert will be entirely vocal, the band and the orchestra being unable to prepare a program because of the illness-enforced absence of music director Ed Tonini.

OPENS KENNELS-- Mrs. Betty Graham, pictured with one of her pets, has opened a new boarding kennel for the Cambrian Park area. Cambrian Kennels, located at 130 Casey Rd. offers complete boarding and grooming service for all pets.

New boarding kennel features radiant heat for pet's comfort

The opening of a new boarding kennel for the Cambrian Park area has been announced by Mrs. Betty Graham, the facility's manager.

Cambrian Kennels, located at 130 Casey Road, Campbell (adjacent to Me'n Ed's Pizza Kitchen), offers complete boarding and grooming services for all pets. All phases of construction reflect careful planning, in providing the best in sanitation, comfort and safety for pets, stated Mrs. Graham.

The building itself and a section of each outside exercise area is radiant heated, for maximum comfort and safety in cold and wet weather. Stainless steel cages, which are sterilized between occupants, assures a clean, healthful area for pets during their stay.

In starting this new venture, Mrs. Graham fulfills a longtime ambition. A veterinary assistant for the past six years in local veterinary hospitals, Mrs. Graham brings a wealth of experience to the kenneling business.

Originally from San Rafael, she has resided in San Jose for seven years with husband Gear Graham and three teenage daughters.

College extended day students can get 'priority' to register

Potential West Valley College Extended Day students have been urged to plan now for next semester by getting a registration priority.

This advice was offered by Donald R. Ziegler, dean of admissions and records, and Hugh E. Staley, acting dean of Extended Day program.

Continuing Extended Day students, or those who are already attending West Valley College in night and evening courses, can apply now and get a permit or "priority" to register with a date and time set, thus avoiding long waiting in lines.

Such permits may be secured in the Admissions and Records office any time of day or evening, and they are issued on a first-come-first-served basis.

Students who come early will register earlier and have a wider selection of classes they can take, the two school officers said.

Actual registration for continuing or new Extended Day students is scheduled for Jan. 25, 29, 30, and 31, from 6 to 9:30 p.m.

At that time, after completing the preliminary steps to register, students will be issued a "permit to Register" which again, will indicate the date and time for them to return to school and complete registration.

Ziegler and Staley urged new students to pre-register early and thus be assured of classes they wish to take. The pre-registration process, if properly utilized by the student, can reduce waiting time at regular registration from hours to a matter of minutes, both men said.

Columnist to talk at college

Art Hoppe, the Chronicle's roving political writer, will lecture at West Valley College on Thursday, Dec. 14, at 8 p.m., under the auspices of the Office of Community Services.

Hoppe's syndicated daily, humorous, political column runs the gamut from the Washington scene, which he visits periodically, to whimsical take-offs on causes espousing satire. For the latter he formulated his own "Love Everybody" crusade, then decided that each cause needs at least one hate symbol, which in Hoppe's group became Antarcticans (Penguins).

Hoppe careened from graduation from Harvard with honors in 1949, to a job as copy boy on the San Francisco Chronicle. After some months he became a reporter. His first major story came in January, 1952, when he and a photographer made their ways on skis to a railroad train, the streamliner "City of San Francisco," snowbound for three days in the High Sierras. They were the first newsmen on the scene.

An ardent yachtsman, Hoppe has had articles published in yachting magazines, and in 1958 his riotous, play-by-play account of ordering a twenty-five foot boat by mail from Japan, was published in the "New Yorker."

He also represented that San Francisco Chronicle with both Kennedy and Nixon during the 1960 presidential campaign.

The topic of his lecture at West Valley College will be "Satire and Other Blunt Instruments." The lecture will take place in the auditorium of the college. Admission will be by ticket only. Free Tickets may be obtained by calling the Office of Community Services, 379-1733, ext. 58.
